DEFINITION OF DOWNTOWN LA

The DCBID defines Downtown Los Angeles as the area bounded by the 110, 101 and 10 freeways and the LA River, plus Chinatown, City West, and Exposition Park. The projects contained in this report are within a portion of Downtown Los Angeles, shown on the map to the left.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

DTLA's comeback began in earnest in Q2, with encouraging signs across all sectors. Although progress is likely to continue through the summer, the absence of the bulk of Downtown's office workers will remain a challenge in the short term. Fortunately, most companies have declared their intention to bring their full workforce back to the office beginning in Q4, even if many workers will be on "hybrid" schedules.

In other sectors, the recovery is well under way. Residential occupancy rates reached their highest levels since Q3 2018 with rents rising 8% from their pandemic low. While still 6% below their pre-pandemic high, these trends reflect the continued demand for urban living that has fueled DTLA's residential boom. The hotel market also showed strong signs of recovery, with encouraging boosts in all stats. Although hurting from the lack of business and convention travel, DTLA is still a strong draw for visitors and locals.

As encouraging as these trends are, the biggest news of the quarter is the opening of the Apple Tower Theatre at 9th and Broadway. Not only did its stunning restoration garner national attention, the historic theater will be home to "Today at Apple", a global initiative supporting young and often underrepresented creatives. Nearby projects approaching completion, such as The Proper Hotel, Arizona State University's Herald Examiner campus, and Brookfield's $100m+ renovation of the California Market Center promise to turn the area into a new hub for the DTLA creative community.

Looking to the future, as The Grand LA nears completion and prepares to transform Bunker Hill, a similarly ambitious project was just announced at the other end of Downtown. Developer Continuum Partners' plan to replace the massive cold storage facility between Alameda and Central with 1,500 residential units, 400K SF of office space, 93K SF of retail space, and a 68-room hotel will be similarly transformative.

Projects like these are a reminder that, while full recovery for Downtown may take some time, and its progress may be hard to see right now, for those who are looking to the future, the appeal of DTLA has not diminished.
